

Arconic Technology Center Campus Offers Late Model Metalworking Research and Development Assets for Sale through AllSurplus Online Auction Marketplace

April 20, 2020

Professional buyers can find and purchase high-end assets for light metal research

BETHESDA, Md., April 20, 2020 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Arconic Technology Center (ATCATC) and AllSurplus, the newest marketplace of Liquidity Services (NASDAQ: LQDT), have partnered to sell equipment and other assets as ATC consolidates its 2,300-acre campus in New Kensington, PA founded in 1965 for light metals research. ATC is consolidating the operations for its light metals development including aluminum castings, forgings, components and extrusions for the automotive and aerospace industries. All assets are currently available for bidding through a private treaty sale on www.AllSurplus.com and assets will continue to be added throughout the year.

"Arconic is a market leader for providing metals materials to the aerospace and automotive industries and this is a rare opportunity for buyers to access the equipment used at their research and development campus in New Kensington," said Chris Register, vice president of sales for Liquidity Services and AllSurplus. "These assets are immediately available and ready to be put back in production for any metals research or manufacturing facility."
